Description

EventPro® Series Eames Eiffel Style Armchair – Grey

A moulded polypropylene armchair with integrated armrests and a reinforced Eiffel-style steel base, in grey. The one-piece seat shell includes armrests moulded into the form, distinguishing this from the standard Eiffel side chair. You get arm support without separate attachments that loosen or break over time.

Weight: 4.5kg. Dimensions: 81cm tall, 61cm wide, 57cm deep. Grey is the most versatile colour in the range. It disappears into any venue environment without competing with decor, branding, or table settings.

Integrated Armrests

The armrests are part of the seat shell, not bolted-on accessories. This single-piece construction means no joints to fail, no screws to tighten, and no gaps where armrests meet the seat. The smooth, continuous form is comfortable under forearms and easy to wipe clean between events.

Armrests change how people use a chair. Guests sit longer and relax into the seat rather than perching forward. For networking events, lounge areas, and hospitality suites where you want guests to linger, the armchair format works better than a side chair.

The Grey Colour

Grey hides minor dust and scuffs better than white or black. It suits corporate environments where neutral tones dominate: technology companies, financial institutions, legal firms, and consulting practices. The colour also works for exhibitions, trade shows, and product launches where the chair should recede and let the displayed product take focus.

Grey pairs with every table linen colour and every brand palette. If you are buying one colour for a mixed-use fleet that serves multiple clients and event types, grey offers the widest compatibility.

The Eiffel Base

The reinforced steel Eiffel base provides a wide, stable footprint on hard floors. The lattice geometry distributes weight through multiple contact points. Rubber feet protect floor surfaces from scratching.

Construction

The polypropylene shell resists impact, staining, and UV degradation. Wipes clean with a damp cloth. The steel base is powder-coated for corrosion resistance. At 4.5kg, one person repositions the chair with one hand.

Part of the EventPro® range. Trusted by the BBC, ITV, HSBC, Cambridge University, and used at the Commonwealth Games.

Buying in Bulk

If you buy 50, 100, or 200 armchairs, measure your store room, your lift, and your van before you place the order. The wider shell and fixed arms take more footprint than a side chair, so you need a clear plan for floor stacks, shelf bays, or padded wheeled bases. Buyers who split stock by room or by venue crew cut loading time and avoid mixed piles at call time.

Layout Planning

Armchairs suit meeting pods, waiting zones, panel stages, and head table positions where guests sit for longer spans. In a 100 person room, many planners use standard dining chairs for the main floor and place 6 to 12 armchairs at the edge for speakers, registrars, or VIP guests. If you use armchairs around tables, allow more width per seat than you would with an armless shell chair. Event teams also leave at least 1.2 metres on main routes so guests and staff can pass without clipping the arm.

Colour and Venue Fit

Buyers turn to grey when they want a neutral seat that sits between black and white. Grey takes on the tone of the room around it, so it pairs with concrete floors, timber slats, brushed metal, and stone walls without clash. Under warm light it picks up a taupe note. Under daylight it reads closer to silver.

That restraint suits boardrooms, hotel lounges, council foyers, university reception spaces, and premium exhibition stands. Teams also use grey when they want one stock line that can cross from wedding breakfast to product launch with no sharp shift in tone.

Pairing Across the EventPro® Range

Buyers pair these armchairs with matching EventPro® Eiffel side chairs, low tables, café tables, reception desks, and meeting tables. That mix gives you one visual language across lounge, dining, and front of house zones. You can use armchairs at the heads of tables, on interview sets, or around coffee tables, then keep side chairs on guest rows where you need tighter spacing.

Care and Service Life

Venue staff keep the shell in good shape when they wipe marks after each use, lift the chair rather than drag it, and check the frame fixings as part of routine prep. The broad Eiffel base spreads load across the floor, and the fixed arms help guests lower into the seat with control. If you run high use stock in public venues, keep spare feet and a small fixings kit on hand so your team can turn damaged chairs around between bookings.
