Description

EventPro® Series Eames Eiffel Style Armchair – Black

A moulded polypropylene armchair with integrated armrests and a reinforced Eiffel-style steel base, in black. The one-piece seat shell includes armrests moulded into the form, distinguishing this from the standard Eiffel side chair. You get arm support without separate attachments that loosen or break over time.

Weight: 4.5kg. Dimensions: 81cm tall, 61cm wide, 57cm deep. The black finish works across corporate events, exhibition spaces, hospitality lounges, and office breakout areas without clashing with venue decor or branding.

Integrated Armrests

The armrests are part of the seat shell, not bolted-on accessories. This single-piece construction means no joints to fail, no screws to tighten, and no gaps where armrests meet the seat. The smooth, continuous form is comfortable under forearms and easy to wipe clean between events.

Armrests change how people use a chair. Guests sit longer. They relax into the seat rather than perching forward. For networking events, lounge areas, and hospitality suites where you want guests to linger and converse, the armchair encourages that behaviour in a way a side chair does not.

The Eiffel Base

The reinforced steel Eiffel base provides a wide, stable footprint on hard floors. The lattice geometry distributes weight through multiple contact points, eliminating the single-point loading that causes chairs to sink into soft flooring or carpet. Rubber feet protect floor surfaces from scratching.

Construction

The polypropylene shell resists impact, staining, and UV degradation. It wipes clean with a damp cloth or mild detergent. The steel base is powder-coated for corrosion resistance and aesthetic consistency. At 4.5kg, the chair is light enough for one-handed repositioning during event setup.

Typical Uses

Exhibition stand seating, corporate hospitality lounges, office reception areas, co-working spaces, hotel lobbies, and VIP event areas. The black colour absorbs into the background, letting your venue decor, branding, or product displays take visual priority.

Part of the EventPro® range. Trusted by the BBC, ITV, HSBC, Cambridge University, and used at the Commonwealth Games.

Buying in Bulk

If you buy 50, 100, or 200 armchairs, measure your store room, your lift, and your van before you place the order. The wider shell and fixed arms take more footprint than a side chair, so you need a clear plan for floor stacks, shelf bays, or padded wheeled bases. Buyers who split stock by room or by venue crew cut loading time and avoid mixed piles at call time.

Layout Planning

Armchairs suit meeting pods, waiting zones, panel stages, and head table positions where guests sit for longer spans. In a 100 person room, many planners use standard dining chairs for the main floor and place 6 to 12 armchairs at the edge for speakers, registrars, or VIP guests. If you use armchairs around tables, allow more width per seat than you would with an armless shell chair. Event teams also leave at least 1.2 metres on main routes so guests and staff can pass without clipping the arm.

Colour and Venue Fit

Buyers choose black when they want the chair to ground a room and let branding, florals, glassware, or stage light take the eye first. In a boardroom, black keeps the line neat. In a hospitality lounge, black sits with oak, brass, and dark carpet. Under warm lamps the shell reads as soft charcoal. Under white house light it looks sharp and crisp.

That finish suits corporate receptions, council chambers, NHS meeting rooms, university interview suites, and exhibition stands where many brands share one floor. Teams also use black armchairs at the ends of dining rows, beside coffee tables, or around signing desks where guests sit for longer spans.

Pairing Across the EventPro® Range

Buyers pair these armchairs with matching EventPro® Eiffel side chairs, low tables, café tables, reception desks, and meeting tables. That mix gives you one visual language across lounge, dining, and front of house zones. You can use armchairs at the heads of tables, on interview sets, or around coffee tables, then keep side chairs on guest rows where you need tighter spacing.

Care and Service Life

Venue staff keep the shell in good shape when they wipe marks after each use, lift the chair rather than drag it, and check the frame fixings as part of routine prep. The broad Eiffel base spreads load across the floor, and the fixed arms help guests lower into the seat with control. If you run high use stock in public venues, keep spare feet and a small fixings kit on hand so your team can turn damaged chairs around between bookings.
